Unreleased Songs:

- 72 "En hälsning till våra parkarrangörer". [Promoting Björn & Benny, Agnetha & Frida's Summer -73 Folkpark tour. Includes spoken words and excerpts from 'People Need Love', 'Man vill ju leva lite dessemellan' (solo work of Frida) and 'Så glad som dina ögon' (solo work of Agnetha)!]
- 74 Rikky Rock 'n' Roller. [Rec. during the recording sessions for ABBA's "ABBA" album in -74, but the song was left unfinished. The Swedish rock star Jerry Williams recorded and released it as a single after ABBA had decided their version was unsuitable for release. An excerpt of the demo of this song was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music"!]]
- 74 Here Comes Rubie Jamie. [Working title of a song recorded in -74, which had acquired the name 'Terra Del Fuego' by the time the lyrics were recorded. The song is unique in that it is the only studio recording to feature lead vocals by all four ABBA members. An excerpt of this song was released on the box set "Thank You For The Music", although here only Benny and Frida are heard. The excerpt was particularly edited so as not to include the chorus, as is it said that Björn and Benny violently dislike it. This is the reason why it is not named after its original title, but named to not refer the chorus!]
- 74 Baby. [Early demo version of 'Rock me' recorded in -74 with the lead vocals by Agnetha. An excerpt of this song was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music"!]]
- 75 To Live With You. [Attempt to record the song 'Lycka' (previously released by Björn and Benny for their first album by the same title, and also recorded by Frida on her first album) in English. The demo recording dates from -75, and was later released on the remastered CD of Björn & Benny's "Lycka" album in May -06!]
- 75 Dancing Queen. [Early Version!] [Demo version with an extra verse. The extra verse can be heard on the documentary "The Winner Takes It All" and the "ARRIVAL Deluxe" DVD originally from "Mr. Trendsetter" swedish program. The extra verse appears on the Spanish version of 'Dancing Queen'. The Extra line: 'Baby, baby, you're out of sight / Hey, you're looking alright tonight / When you come to the party / Listen to the guys They've got the look in their eyes'. The song then resumes with the line: 'You're a teaser, you turn them on!']]
- 75 I Do, I Do, I Do, I Do, I Do. [Early version!] [Demo version with an extra verse!]
- 75 Tango. [Early version of 'Fernando' with Swedish lyrics. An excerpt was included in the ABBA Undeleted medley as part of the 4 CD box set "Thank You For the Music" in -94 !]
- 75 Fernando. [Swedish Version!] [1st version of the song, which later was recorded in English and released as a single worldwide. The original Swedish version was released months before on Anni-Frid (Frida) Lyngstads' solo album "Ensam" and was the lead single from that album. The song has never been released as part of an official ABBA-release, although the backing track is the same as the one used on the English version.
- 75 S.O.S. [Swedish Version!] [2nd version of the song, which previously had been recorded in English and released as a single worldwide. The song was recorded by Agnetha Fältskog and released as the lead single from her album "Elva Kvinnor I Ett Hus" ("Eleven Women in one House"). The song has never been released as part of an official ABBA-release, although the backing track is the same as the one used on the original English version, which was released as a single and on the "ABBA" -75 !]
- 76 When I Kissed the Teacher. [Early mix!] [Video version of the song from the swedish TV special "ABBA-dabba-dooo!!". Later remixed for the album release!]
- 76 Funky Feet. [Rec. during the "Arrival" sessions that eventually was dropped due to the similarity of 'Dancing Queen'. Later the song was recorded by Svenne & Lotta, Australian group The Studs, Alcazar, and Arrival, a Swedish ABBA tribute band!]
- 76 National Song. [Short track recorded for the Australian TV Commercial of the National appliances. It is a re-recording of 'Fernando' with new lyrics, using the backing track from this song!]
- 76 Monsieur, Monsieur. [The title of the early demo version of 'My Love, My Life' with lead vocals by Agnetha!]
- 76 Memory Lane. [3rd title of 'Why did it have to be me' / 'Happy Hawaii' that is said to have been recorded but never released!]
- 77 I am an A . [A song written for the -77 Tour with lyrics written by all four, jokingly depicting themselves as A, B, B and A. The song was never considered for a studio version, but parts of the chorus was later reused in 'Free as a Bumblebee', and as that song never progressed beyond the demo, the chorus surfaced during the "Chess" songwriting sessions as the UK No. 1 hit 'I Know him so Well!']]
- 77 Get on the Carousel. [Another song from the -77 Tour, written for the mini-musical "The Girl with the Golden Hair". The song was considered too weak to progress further, but the chorus surfaced as a melody line in 'Hole in your Soul' (the part "...ahaa-, the songs you sing are too romantic..."). 'Get on the Carousel' appears in "ABBA: The Movie"!]]
- 77 Scaramouche. [Demo instrumental recording from -77. Some parts surfaced in the recording sessions for "Chess" and resulted in a melody line in the track 'Merano'. An excerpt of this song was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music"!]]
- 77 Billy Boy. [Early version of 'Take a Chance on me'. An excerpt of this track was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music"!]]
- 77 Love for me is Love Forever. [A.k.a. 'Yippee Yay', 'Big John' and 'Joanne' are early versions of 'Move On'!]
- 78 Free As A Bumble Bee. [A.k.a. 'Svantes Inferno' is a demo recorded in -78 with lead vocals by Björn and Benny, released in the box set "Thank You For The Music". Part of the chorus was later reused in 'I Know him so well' from the musical "Chess"!]]
- 78 Mountain Top / Dr. Claus von Hamlet nos. 1, 2 and 3 . [Several demos recorded in -78. The composition underwent several changes and [fun] demo titles during the sessions. At one point the demo featured lyrics and vocals by Björn titled 'Mountain Top', and another instrumental attempt ('Part 1') and later reworking 'Part 2' (with lead vocals by Agnetha & Frida) was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music". Parts of the composition would re-surface in the June -80 demo 'Burning my Bridges', but eventually the song was defined as a 'schottis' and put aside until Benny made his first instrumental folk album "Klinga Mina Klockor" in -87, and there named 'Lottis Schottis'!

- 78 Summer Night City. [Early mixes!] [According to Michael B. Tretow there are over 30 different mixes of this song preserved on old tapes, some which are very different from that which was later released as a single. One version was released on the -94 box set "Thank You For The Music", with an instrumental string intro. This version, in an improved edit, was released on "The Complete Studio Recordings" and again on "Voulez-Vous Deluxe Edition"!]
 - 78 Just a Notion. [Demo recorded in -78. A snippet of this track was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music". A complete version was recorded by cover band Arrival, which features original ABBA bass player Rutger Gunnarsson, and was included on their -99 album "First Flight". This recording features a full set of lyrics (which are identical to those which ABBA used), unlike the small snippet of the released ABBA version. Carl Magnus Palm has also confirmed that the verse included in 'ABBA Undeleted' is in fact the second verse of the song. The full version was intended to be released on the -10 "Voulez-Vous Deluxe Edition" but for some unknown reason it was not included!]
 - 78 Crying over you. [Demo recorded in -78 with lead vocal by Björn. An excerpt of this track was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music"!]
 - 78 If it wasn't for the Nights. [Early Mix!] [Performed on The Mike Yarwood Christmas Show, and most noticeably differs from the released version in that it doesn't have any string overdubs!]
 - 78 In the Arms Of Rosalita. [Early demo version of 'Chiquitita'. An excerpt can be heard in the TV documentary "The Winner Takes It All". It featured lead vocals by Frida. A later version 'Chiquitita Angelina' was sung by both girls in unison!]
 - 78 Nämndöfjärden. [An instrumental demo with Benny Andersson playing synthesizers, recorded on December 13, -78. The track remains unreleased!]
 - 78 Does your Mother Know. [Early Mix!] [A.k.a. 'I can do it' is a complete version with a different intro that can be heard on the TV special "ABBA in Switzerland". Part of this version comes from the unrecorded song 'I Want you' (-75) and was included in the 'Does your Mother Know' scene in "Mamma Mia!" musical. Also, if you listen closely to the live version of 'Does your Mother Know', released on the "ABBA in Concert" DVD, you hear an instrumental guitar riff of this edit. A few notes from the unused early intro would later end up in the -82 recording of 'You Owe me one'!]
 - 79 Sång till Görel. [Tribute song for Görel Johnsen's 30th birthday recorded in -79. It was never commercially released; however, a very limited number of records were pressed and given to people who attended the party!]
 - 79 Lady Bird. [Song with no vocals recorded, later used in 'Someone else's Story' from the musical "Chess"!]
 - 79 And the Wind Cries Mary. [Demo recording made on June 25 -79, the recording does not feature any vocals!]
 - 79 I'm still Alive. [Music by Agnetha and lyrics by Björn] was performed live on the North America and Europe tours in -79. Later recorded in Swedish by Polar Music artist Kicki Moberg!]
 - 79 Rubber Ball Man. [Demo version, containing dummy lyrics, of a song entitled 'Under my Sun', recorded in -79. The lyrics do not make sense - they were recorded so that Björn could get a feel for the sound of the song, before any real lyrics were to be written. The lead vocals are shared by Agnetha and Frida. An excerpt of this track was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music". The melody of the verse would later be heard as a part of the melody for the verses in 'Under Attack' ("and every day the hold is getting tighter... / I wish there was a way that I could show you...")!]
 - 79 Dream World. (See main article!)
 - 80 Burning my Bridges. [Country/Rockabilly song recorded in -80 with lead vocal by Björn. An excerpt of this track was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music"!]
 - 80 Put on your white Sombrero. [Song based on waltz with a latinamerican sound recorded in -80 with lead vocal by Anni-Frid Lyngstad. Originally the track was intended to be released on the -80-album "Super Trouper". It was however replaced by that album's title track. The song remained unreleased until -94, when it was included in the box set "Thank You For The Music" and the promo-cd-single 'Dream World'. It has since appeared as a bonus track on various versions of reissues of the "Super Trouper" -album and in the box set "Abba - The Complete Studio Recordings".]
 - 81 Hovas vittne. [Song sung in Swedish, recorded as a tribute to Stig Anderson's 50th birthday in -81, and released on a limited amount of singles for the guests attending the party only. The title is a play on words; Hova is the small village in Västergötland in which Anderson was born, and Vittne is a reference to Jehovah's Witnesses. The song includes a four bar passage that was later used in the "Chess" overture 'Merano'!]
 - 81 Tivedshambo. [Instrumental recording of Stig Anderson's first published song, recorded in -81. It is the B-side of 'Hovas vittne'!]
 - 81 When all is Said and done. [Demo Version and various mixes!] [Instrumental track recorded in -81 with a different bridge. A version with vocals featured a more emotional repetition of the first verse after the third, making the track 4:20 instead of 3:15. When the video was released in -81 it featured another alternate version with a different ending!]
 - 81 Nationalsång. [Instrumental track that later was used in 'Anthem' from the musical "Chess". The song is well-known as 'Opus 10' among ABBA fans due a misunderstanding made by a journalist!]
 - 81 I am a Musician. [Instrumental demo track recorded in -81. Later the song was included in the musical "ABBAcadabra" and recorded by B. A. Robertson with the slightly altered title 'I am the Seeker'. The melody to the chorus was later used by Benny Andersson in the song 'Upp Till Dig' from his -07 album, "BAO 3"!]
 - 81 Fanfare for Icehockey World Championships '81. [Short instrumental track written for the Ice Hockey World Championship hosted by Sweden in -81. Used as the jingle/opening theme for the television special "Dick Cavett Meets ABBA" aired later in -81 !]
 - 81 Two for the Price of one. [Early Demo Version!] [Slightly different lyrics, and is sung from a first person perspective ('I have what you might call a simple occupation / I clean the toilets of the local railway station / With no romance in my life / Sometimes I wish I had a knife')!]
 - 81 Givin' a little bit more. [Demo recorded in -81 with lead vocals by Björn. An excerpt of this track was released in the box set "Thank You For The Music"!]
 - 81 An Angel's Passing through my Room. [Early demo version of 'Like an Angel Passing through my Room' with both Frida and Agnetha on lead vocals. The track was at some point arranged and mixed in the disco-style of 'Lay all your Love on me' and later heavily reworked!]
 - 81 Another Morning without you. [Another early demo version of 'Like an Angel Passing through my Room'. The song had an operatic feel to it, with shared leadvocals by Agnetha & Frida. Also, the song had a full backing band instead of the synth only backing that eventually became 'Like an Angel Passing through my Room'!]
 - 82 Just like that. [Title of one of Swedish pop group ABBA's last songs, and has caused a lot of interest and hype among ABBA fans as it has not yet been released in its entirety.]

ABBA's composers Benny Andersson and Björn Ulvaeus wrote 'Just like that' sometime in the springtime of -82, and the group started recording sessions with this and a handful of other new songs in the beginning of May that year. The composers however lost interest in the track after several attempts at recording it, and decided in early June to put the 'Just like that' tapes aside. Journalists visiting ABBA in their studio during these sessions wrote about the new material, and fans thus heard of the new ABBA songs to come. Two titles were mentioned: 'Just like that' and 'I am the City'. 'Just like that' was also mentioned in an official Polar Music Press release in the summer of -82. It stated that the song was completed and would be released on the next studio album. However, the outcome of these last recording sessions during the summer months of -82 was two singles released in August and November -82 respectively: 'The Day Before you came' / 'Cassandra', and 'Under Attack' / 'You Owe me one'. The a-sides were included in the new ABBA release "The Singles: The First Ten Years", a double LP celebrating ABBA's singles from -73 until -82. Although the foursome stated the group would continue work in -83, this eventually did not happen. 'Just like that' was also recorded in Spanish but along with the other version remains unreleased.

Somehow, bootleg versions of some of the as of yet unreleased demos began circulating among fans during the -80s, and there has been a growing interest for their official release. Benny and Björn allowed for a snippet of 'Just like that' to be released in a 'medley' track in a box set released in 1994: "Thank You For The Music", but this became nothing but a teaser for the avid ABBA fan. The 'Just like that' snippet released in -94 revealed the chorus of the track only, and not only did it include an unmistakably shared vocal by Agnetha and Anni-Frid, but also a saxophone solo by Raphael Ravenscroft, who worked on Gerry Rafferty's hit 'Baker Street' in -78 (one of the few times that ABBA used a musician outside the usual ABBA circle).

In June -82 the song was shelved, but after ABBA split up, Benny and Björn looked at the song again, and in -84 decided to rework both composition and lyrics and ended up with two new songs. The first, which kept the original 'Just like that' chorus, was recorded by Swedish duo Gemini when Benny and Björn wrote songs and produced their first album in -85. 'Just like that' was even released as a Gemini single in the UK. The other part of the song, composed around the original 'Just like that' verses, had the demo title 'When the Waves Roll out to Sea', and as such was one of the songs tried out (by both Elaine Paige and Tommy Körberg) during sessions for Benny and Björn's work with Tim Rice for the "Chess" (musical), but it was once again put aside (it even got another working title and another set of lyrics: 'With the Stars up in the Sky').

The ABBA version, with its composition of verse and chorus, was left unsatisfactory by Benny and Björn in June -82. They have stated this first version sounded 'wrong': verse and chorus did not fit together, and that is why it was scrapped, and the two admit this happens regularly in their way of writing music: a mediocre song can become a bridge or a riff in another song, and a good melody line can lie around for years until it surfaces in a composition.

'When the Waves Roll out to Sea' surfaced when Benny was working on the Swedish staging of "Chess - Chess På Svenska" - in -02, as the -84 musical by now had a new libretto and new material was needed.

The verses to the old 'Just like that' were added to a new chorus in -84, and now it found its place in "Chess" - almost 20 years later - as the number 'Glöm Mig Om Du Kan', a ballad sung by the Russian character Molokov, with Swedish lyrics by Björn.

There are at least two known bootleg demo versions of ABBA's original version of 'Just like that'. The first attempt at recording the song has become known as the 'slow' version, or 'dream' version. This version has a simple instrumental melody in between the verses and the choruses. Also apparent is a guitar riff that eventually made its way into the verse melody of ABBA's last official single release, 'Under Attack' ("Don't know how to take it/don't know where to go /my resistance's running low...").

The second version of the song is known as the 'na na na' (or 'la la la') version. The song is essentially the same as the first; the same backing track and arrangement, but this time, with Agnetha singing emotional 'na na na na's on top of the instrumental melody.

The final and completed version of the song has become known as the 'saxophone' version. This is the official 'final mix' of 'Just like that'. This version is very different to the first two, with a different arrangement and a new backing track. In place of the previous instrumental melodies/'na na na' vocal overdubs, there are lengthy saxophone riffs (courtesy of Raphael Ravenscroft). This version of the song is the only version to be released, albeit not in its entirety.

Michael B. Tretow, ABBA's recording engineer throughout their whole career, did the editing of the released version of the track for the -94 box set, and did a fine job in cutting and pasting the track, leaving the chorus to repeat in a loop (and thus not 'releasing' the melody in the verses).

Carl Magnus Palm, author of the ABBA biography "Bright Lights, Dark Shadows" in -01, states in his -94 book "ABBA - The Complete Recording Sessions" on this last version that this "...is what would have reached the listener's ears had the track been released".

Agnetha said in 1994: "I haven't heard it in several years, but I remember it as a very good song and recording. It is one of my big favourites, and I hope it's going to be released one day".

The lyrical theme seems to have been transferred from the shelved 'Just like that' in June -82 to the lyrics for 'The Day Before you came', which were recorded in August the same year: "Until that day/My life had been a river/Following the same/pre-destinated course/Suddenly detouring so unexpectedly/With uncompromising force/My strongholds broke down all too easily/I remember well/How it did embarrass me/I hung on to his every smile/Marveled at his style/ [...] /Just like that.../And once again/the river's flowing slowly/Following the same and uneventful course/Now the tears have dried/it's become a pleasant break/I recall without remorse/But now and then/I wonder where he is/And I will admit/he had something that I miss/I guess he was a rolling stone/The only one I've known...!"

- 82 I am the City. [Song recorded in May -82, originally made for inclusion on what would have been the group's ninth studio album. However, these plans were soon abandoned by the band members, instead settling for a double-compilation album release of their most successful singles, "The Singles: The First Ten Years". As a result of this, 'I am the City' remained unreleased for eleven years until it was first commercially released on the "More ABBA Gold: More ABBA Hits" compilation CD in -93. Previously the song had surfaced on bootleg recordings!]
- 83 Every good Man. [Demo version of the song 'Heaven Help my Heart', which was later recorded by Elaine Paige and included on the "Chess" (musical) soundtrack. The track was recorded in January, -83. It features Agnetha Fältskog on vocals and Benny Andersson on synthesizer/piano. Anni-Frid Lyngstad does not appear on the track.]
- 83 When the Waves Roll out to Sea. [Song recorded by Björn and Benny for the musical "Chess". It was also intended as an ABBA song for their unreleased 9th album in -83 !]
