- (*) Incantations, {Part four}. [2011 Remaster!]
- (*) Guilty. [2011 Remaster!]

[The remastered mix of 'Incantations Part 4' included, in the first pressing of the disc, a glitch consisting in the accidental omission of a percussive hit, causing a rhythmical irregularity. According to Universal Music, it was due to an improperly remastered edit point in the original 1977 master tapes. This glitch occurred between 12:36 and 12:38 in the first pressing; in the second pressing, a smaller and less noticeable glitch occurs at 12:40, where both percussive hits are present, but the rhythm still shows a slight irregularity. There are also problems with the remaster of 'Guilty'. Not only was the original master tape transferred at a slower speed than originally recorded, but the tape speed appears to slow down throughout the course of the track. As a result, the music is almost a semitone lower in pitch at the end of the track, compared to the beginning. This was not present in the original vinyl pressing of the 7-inch version.]

[The glitch at 12:38 and the later one at 12:40 on 'Part 4' on the CD are also featured on the vinyl, because of the same faulty remaster being used for both the CD and the vinyl release.]
