[On the vinyl and cassette releases, side one was labeled the "A side" and side two "Another side." The "A side" label bore the title Fables of the Reconstruction, while "Another side" bore the title Reconstruction of the Fables. The front cover of all releases shows the words "Fables of the", while the back cover reads "Reconstruction of the". The CD label has the title simply as "Fables of the Reconstruction", while both spines are labeled "Reconstruction of the Fables". The ambiguous title makes possible reference to both the Reconstruction era of the United States and the literary process of deconstruction.

Also, the liner notes list a song titled "When I Was Young" as among the track listing, but it does not appear on the album. The song was played live several times during the 1985 "Preconstruction" US college tour (a tour that took place before the release of the album), but it was quickly dropped. However, the song was reworked into "I Believe", released on the following album Lifes Rich Pageant.

A demo version of "When I Was Young" appears as "Throw Those Trolls Away" on the 25th Anniversary Edition of Fables, released July 13, 2010; the CD-Text information on the disc, however, still identifies the song's title as "When I Was Young".]

['Superman' was listed on some early UK CD copies as 'Superwoman'. The track listing on the back of the album is incorrect. It has never been corrected. The order is given as 1-5-10-8-2-7-4-9-3-11, which leaves out 'Superman' and 'Underneath the Bunker'. The track listing is correct on the actual vinyl, cassette, and some CD versions. Early American pressings of the CD have the track number for 'Cuyahoga' as '0R' instead of '04' printed on the disc itself. This error resurfaces on the cover of "Green". On the vinyl and cassette releases, R.E.M. labeled side one (tracks 1–6) as the "Dinner side" and side two (tracks 7–12) as the "Supper side." The European 'I.R.S. Years Vintage 1986' release preserves the erroneous track list, but properly lists the bonus tracks.]

- [i] Features the backing track of "7 Chinese Bros." (from Reckoning) with Stipe singing the liner notes from the back cover of a gospel album, "The Joy of Knowing Jesus" by The Revelaires.
- ii) Buck says 'Walter's Theme' and 'King of the Road' were recorded extemporaneously during a recording session while the band was drunk. The songs were recorded at the end of a tryout session with Elliot Mazer in -83, prior to the recording of "Reckoning". In 'Walter's Theme', Stipe references the Pere Ubu song 'Lonesome Cowboy Dave' ("I got a hat the size of Oklahoma!"); 'King of the Road' consists mostly of Stipe fumbling through the lyrics ("I'm a man, a man by no means") as Buck and Mills try to arrive at the same key (both can be heard yelling chord names at each other).
- iii) Studio outtake, as listed on "And I Feel Fine... The Best of the I.R.S. Years 1982-1987".]
